The premiums will be based on established mortality tables and the business will be conducted along well defined lines during the history of the life insurance business.

The insurance will be furnished at net cost. No charge will be made for anything above the amount needed to pay the policies falling due on account of death. Wisconsin is the first state to try the plan of state life insurance.

STRANGE FIND MADE BY Y. M. C. A. BOYS AT A MICHIGAN CAMP

Discover Rusty Box Containing Knives, Daggers and Coins With Some Money Dug Up.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Cory, Mich., July 6.—Boys from the South Bend, Ind., Y. M. C. A., while digging a hole for a flagstaff here, discovered a rusty iron box containing pistols, a dagger, a knife and books dating from 1767 to 1819, a number of pennies bearing the dates 1781 to 1851, samples of oars, arrow heads, and a collection of pebbles and manuscripts. A letter found in the chest says: "This chest is the property of Hezekiah Thomas, formerly of New England, later of the Michigan wilderness. A spiritualist will raise over these bones. In full moon someone guarding my valuable possessions. God gave me many wonderful secrets, but because of a great sin he took them all away but one day turning of sable stones into gold. I have buried this secret by the body of old duckling in his swamp. God has filled the earth with gold; devils do not believe it, but has in the promised motto, 'seek and find.' The blue heron is wise, and so is the night owl, but man is an ass, for he walketh no in ways most high."

EMERALD ISLE TO EXTEND WELCOME TO ROYAL PARTY

Extensive Preparations Being Made in Dublin For Entertainment of King George and Queen Mary on Saturday.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Dublin, July 6.—All Dublin, and in truth, all Ireland, is on the edge of excitement at the coming of the King and Queen. Crowds are pouring in from all points, and it is estimated that the normal population of Dublin, about 350,000, will have swollen to 1,000,000 by Saturday, the day on which their Majesties will make their entry into the city.

The royal visit to Dublin will extend over four days. The official arrangements are calculated to keep their Majesties busy almost from the hour of their arrival until their departure. The date of departure, by the way, falls on July 12, the day the Ulster Orangemen hold their great annual celebration. Some of the leaders among the Orangemen have not been slow to take offense at the King departing from the country on that anniversary, and have petitioned him, instead, to visit Ulster's capital, Belfast. As all the arrangements for the royal visit were concluded months ago, however, it is impossible to make any change in the itinerary. Furthermore, it would not be at all expedient for the King to visit Belfast on Orangemen's day as it would almost surely provoke rioting between the Orangemen and the nationalists.

Their Majesties are expected to arrive at Kingstown on the royal yacht Victoria and Albert early Saturday morning. They will land at the Victoria wharf at about 10:30, and will be received by the Lord Lieutenant and Countess of Aberdeen. At the Dublin city limits they will be met by the Lord Mayor and council in their scarlet robes, and mace-bearers in uniforms of blue and silver. Soldiers will line the road as a guard of honor, while behind them will be columns of police, hussars and militia.

On their arrival at Dublin Castle the King and Queen will be received by the Lord Lieutenant hearing the sword of state. The apartments which their Majesties will occupy at the castle have been completely refurbished and redecorated for the royal visit. A new and much-needed supper room has been built at the back of the state apartments. The additional and alterations have allowed a room with a beautifully decorated ceiling, which hitherto was not available, to be added to the Victoria's residential apartments. During the royal visit it will be utilized as a small dining-room.

On the afternoon of their arrival their Majesties will leave the castle and proceed to the Royal College of Science for the opening ceremony. Afterward they will be escorted to Trinity College, where an address will be read, to which his Majesty will make a reply.

Leaving Trinity College, the King and Queen will go to the Phoenix Park race course, and will drive thence to the Viceregal Lodge. The first day of their visit in Dublin will conclude with a state banquet at the castle, for which invitations have been issued to several hundreds of the aristocratic and well-known residents of the Irish capital.

A full program has been prepared for Sunday, beginning with the attendance of the King and Queen and their suite at the service in St. Patrick's Cathedral, followed by a visit to the Artisan Industrial School. Later in the day their Majesties will inspect the penitentiaries and girls of the Detention Institute at the Royal Hospital.

A visit to the famous Leopardstown race course and a state banquet at the castle will be the chief events of Monday. During the day his Majesty will hold a levee at the castle. The Queen is expected to find time to receive an address from the women of Ireland and also to pay a brief visit to Coombe Hospital.

Tuesday the King will inspect the Royal Irish Constabulary at the Viceregal Lodge, and will also attend a review of the troops and the presentation of colors in Phoenix Park. In the afternoon there will be a garden party at the Viceregal Lodge, and in the evening a concert will be held at Dublin Castle.

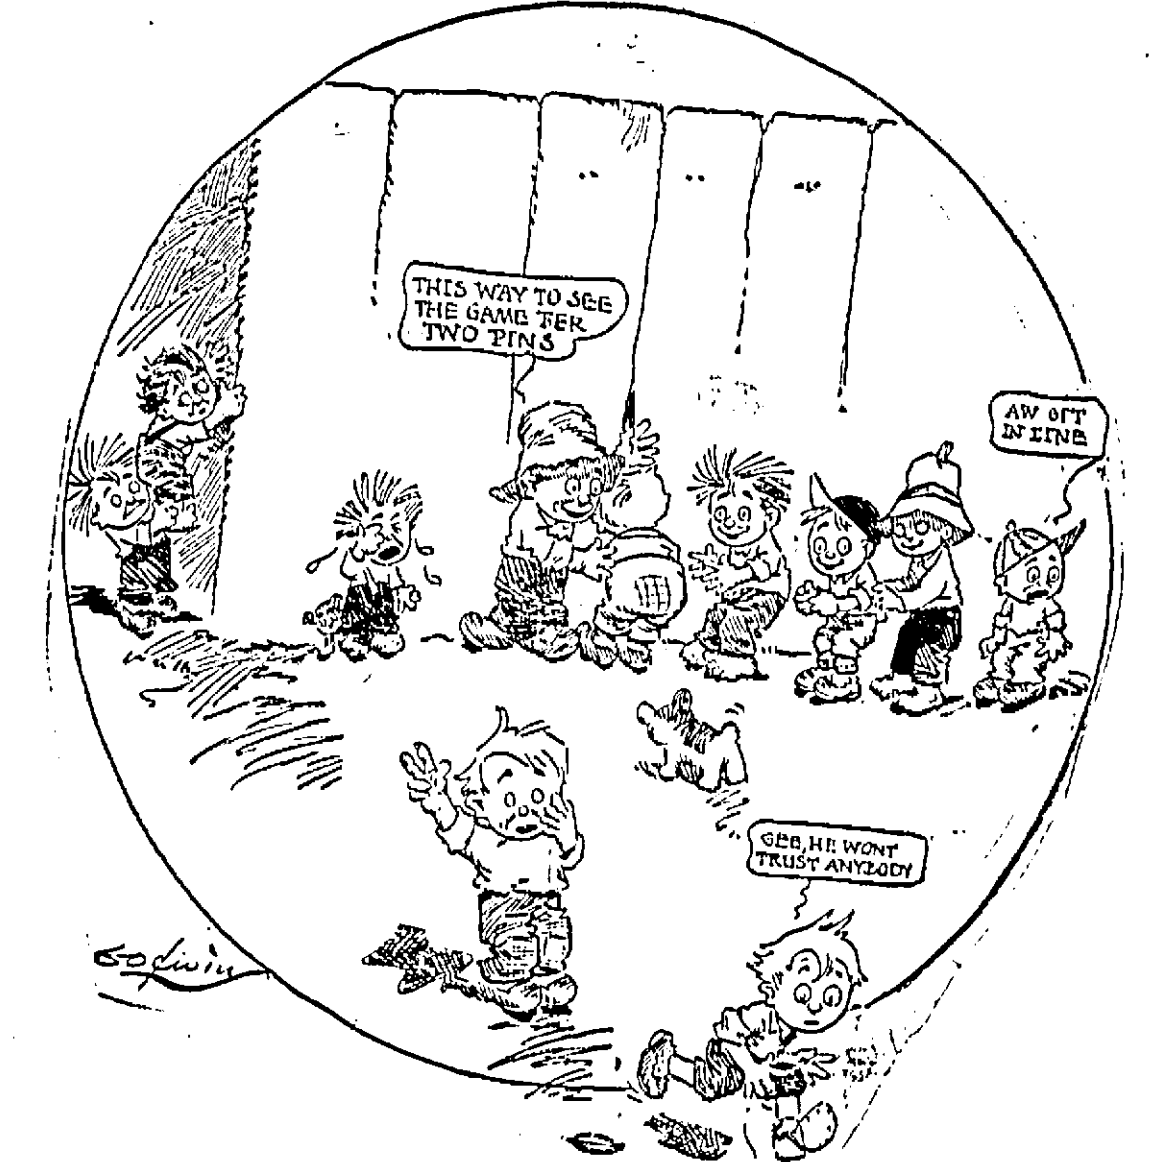

Wednesday afternoon their Majesties will leave Dublin from Westland Row station. On arriving at Kingstown they will depart for home on the Victoria and Albert. On their way to England their Majesties will make a three days' stop in Wales for the investiture of the Prince of Wales at Carnarvon Castle, which event will take place on the day following the departure from Dublin.

SEVEN HUNDRED NEW LAWS ARE WORK OF STATE LEGISLATURE

Vast Amount of Matter Was Handled by Lawmakers During Session Just Closing—Summary of "Big Things" Done.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., July 6.—The Wisconsin legislature of 1911 has kept the platform promises of the republican majority almost to the letter. Out of a flood of 1,701 bills introduced, nearly 700 have been passed, many of which are entirely new enactments, and others merely amendatory, to a greater or less degree, of existing statutes.

The "big things" done by this legislature may be summarized in a comparatively small space, and without exception they represent policies in the republican platform, while some were promulgated in the official campaign statements of the democrats and social democrats. "They are:

New Laws For State.

A comprehensive graduated income tax law.

A workmen's compensation act which has no parallel in the country; the administration being in charge of a commission in whose hands also has been placed all of the work contemplated in the laws relating to labor and industrial matters.

A stringent corrupt practices act, coupled with complete revision of the election laws, including the "second choice primary."

A law providing for the control of water powers as a public utility; completion of the forest reserve and a dozen acts relating to the subject of conservation.

Proposed amendments to the constitution providing for the initiative, referendum and recall.

Appropriation of $250,000 annually for state aid for highways improvement, under the supervision of a state commission.

"Home rule" law for all cities; commission government law strengthened and made workable.

Additional appropriations for the university; acquisition of the State Manual Training and Domestic Science school at Menomonie coupled with increased support for the extension department of the university, under which the "continuation schools" plan will be furthered.

Better laws relating to the public health; pure food laws kept intact, in spite of vigorous onslaughts.

Hours of labor for women limited to ten a day and 55 a week; for children to nine a day and 50 a week.

"State board of public affairs" created to conduct a two-year investigation of the state's financial and accounting systems; of the subject of "co-operative trading," high cost of living, etc., and report to the next legislature.

Appropriation of $400,000 for equipment and maintenance of the binder twine plant at Waupun—a duty which belonged properly to the preceding legislature.

Of all the platform propositions of the republican majority, the proposed change to the "old vulgar" system of taxation for all public utility corporations not already taxed in that manner, alone failed of passage.

WALL STREET BANKS FORM MONEY TRUST OF HUGE DIMENSION

Directors of National Banks and Standard Oil Institution, Organize National City Company With Ten Million Capital.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]
New York, July 6.—Wall street today cleared up the mystery surrounding the recently formed $10,000,000 National City company composed of the directors of the National city banks and the Standard Oil institution. It will, well posted financiers say, occupy a distinct field in the financial world and come closer to becoming a real "money trust" than anything previously conceived by the big interests. The bank, as an institution, was handicapped in business ventures by the national banking laws, making the formation of the new company advisable.

HOKE SMITH SEEKS SENATORIAL TOGA

Governor of Georgia Will Make Strong Fight For Seat in Congress to Succeed Senator Terrell.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Atlanta, Ga., July 6.—The senatorial situation is attracting much attention with the near approach of the date when the Georgia legislature will choose a successor to Senator Terrell, in the United States senate. The balloting will begin Tuesday and all signs point to a spirited contest. Sen. Terrell, who was appointed to fill the seat of the late Senator Clay until the legislature could choose his successor, is a candidate for election to the full term of six years. The leading candidate, however, appears to be Hoke Smith, who was Secretary of the Interior under President Cleveland and who has just been inaugurated for the second time as governor of Georgia.

Gov. Smith, it is understood, has long applied to a seat in the United States senate and his supporters are now preparing to make a strong fight for his election. On the other hand, the anti-Smith element, which includes many prominent politicians in all sections of the state, will leave no stone unturned to prevent his election. A number of other candidates for the toga are receiving more or less attention. One of those whom it is believed could make a formidable showing, should he decide to make an active fight, is Pleasant A. Stovall, the Savannah editor. "Tom" Watson, the former Populist leader; W. A. Cuyler, one of the authors of the State prohibition law; and several others have announced their candidacies.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

There are still 150 bills to be acted upon by the governor, and the speaker declares these will all be in the executive's hands by next Saturday. The governor will have six days, according to law, following that day in which to consider the bills. There have been several circumstances contributing to the delay. The state insurance bill, for example, had to be sent back on account of proof errors, as was the case also with the appointment bill.

CLOSING SCENES OF CELEBRATION WEEK

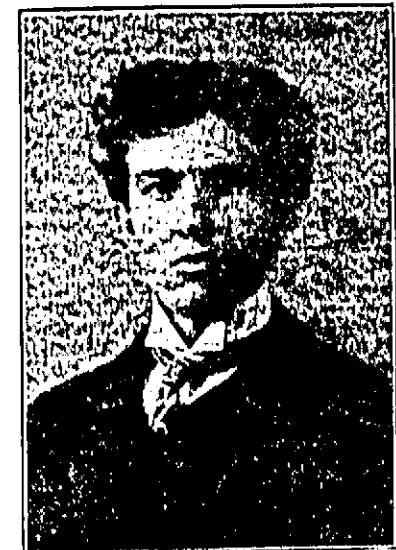

STREETS CROWDED WITH PEOPLE ON THE LAST EVENING.

AUTO PARADE SUCCESS

Fred A. Capelle's Car Given First Prize, George M. McKee's Car Second Place.

Celebration week closed with the auto parade last evening. Throwing clouds, advancing guard of the storm that swept over the city later, deferred many of the possible entrants in the event from taking part but the thirty cars that did appear, were greeted by thousands of spectators that crowded the line of march and cheered the handsome machines as they appeared down Milwaukee street hill.

Led by Chairman Arthur Jones, the parade started from the head of Main street and swept down town, turned the corner at Main street, thence past the park, down St. Lawrence avenue to Park street, back to Court and across the Court street bridge and up Milwaukee street to the Five Points and back down to the Myers Hotel corner, and thence down South Main street and back again.

ARTHUR JONES
Chairman Automobile Committee.

When the winners were announced, the three judges: Colonel Granger Adams, Fifth Field Artillery, Captain Clayton, U. S. A. medical corps and State Senator Whitehead, were stationed on the veranda of the Myers Hotel. It was only under a pledge of secrecy that the names of the judges should not be known until after the regular had left the city, that these officers consented to act and as they were absolutely unknown to any of the contestants, their judgment in the awards was by far only the name of the winner being told them after they had reached their destination.

The first prize of fifty dollars was awarded to the car owned and driven by Fred A. Capelle. It had been designed and decorated by John Henderson, son, and was one of the most elaborate car floats ever seen on the streets. Artificial grape leaves were entwined over a white canopy, which extended back over the machine, and from which streamers of soft lined ribbons extended, hanging down over the sides so as to almost completely conceal the occupants of the car.

The car was driven by F. A. Capelle and seated with him were Mrs. Capelle, Miss Ethel Capelle, Miss Louise Williams and Miss Lucine Bondwick. It was awarded first prize without a dissenting vote by the judges, the second place given by Geo. M. McKee. This car was also arranged in a most artistic design, being the national colors, red, white and blue. Broad arches of frame work were most tastefully designed with red, white and blue; festoons of pink and white chrysanthemums, with American flags draped most tastefully at the front and back of the car. With Mr. McKee in the car were the Misses Josephine, Catherine and Marjorie McKee of Chicago, Mr. McKee's niece.

The car owned by Arthur Harris also came in for considerable notice and received considerable applause, its decorations being most tasty. E. R. Winslow's car with the chrome yellow and turkey red colors of the Spanish War Veterans was patriotic and very handsome and received the plaudits of the assembled crowds who applauded loudly as the favored cars passed.

The success of the whole affair was due entirely to the work of Mr. Jones who spent considerable time planning out the details of the parade and had the weather been this good, more than that number having been entered for that event.

The closing concert of the Fifth Artillery band really ended the days program. Thousands filled the park and listened to the music of this superb musical organization which has delighted the Janesville audiences for the past three evenings. The band is well trained and most eager to give concerts without any pay, having been detailed here to aid in making the state centennial of the Spanish War Veterans a success.

Battery F of the 5th, the regular army contingent, commanded by Colonel Adams, broke camp this morning at three and by five o'clock were on their long "hike" to Spanish reservation where they will remain on duty until October. Many were up with the long line of mules and guns and wagon train lumbered through the city, across the river and up the Evansville road towards Brooklyn where they camp tonight.

LAST OF SOLDIERS LEFT CITY TODAY

COLONEL ADAMS AND HIS COMMAND DEPART ON HIKE TO BROOKLYN.

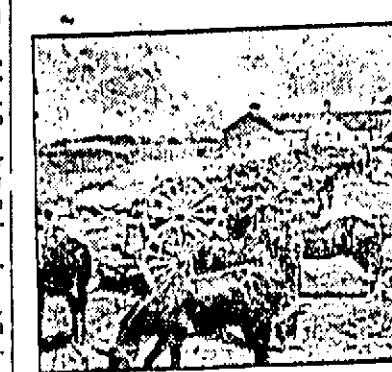

MARCH AT FIVE O'CLOCK

Well Pleased With Their Visit and the Part They Played in the Celebration.

It was three this morning when the first call sounded at the battery camp at the fair grounds and the last of the troops that made the military celebration a success, began packing for their departure. "Stables" and watch call followed and then came the march.

"Sung, sung, sung!"
Without a single note:
"Porky, porky, porky!"
Without a streak of lean.
Coffee, coffee, coffee!
Meat, meat, meat!

No need to tell the men to fall in line. They are ready, equipped and covered, two slices of bread, a bit of hot meat, a potato, and a cup of sugarless coffee. That was their breakfast this morning to prepare them for their long

SCENE AT BATTERY CAMP AS THEY PREPARED TO MARCH.

"Mike." The chuck wagon is a popular place about mess call time and the cooks and his assistants busy people. Dinner was already cooking over the fire—meat, vegetables and gravy.

Bread to be cut—two slices, each, to the hundred and seventy-five men with the command. By the time the men have finished their breakfast, the cooks cleared away their refuse, the big home-made "hay" wagon, strapped behind the big army wagon, stored conveniences for storing away kitchen utensils would create wonder in the minds of the average housewife.

Again the bugle sounded and the men stepped in the two ends of their shelter tents which had been their homes for the past four days. One more sound from the bugle and the tented city of brown canvas is down, and less than a minute later it is rolled up, blankets and poncho strapped securely to go behind the saddle of the men or into the army wagon that the driver has hitched up at the end of the corral.

Again the bugle sounds and horses are hitched to the big guns, the picket line taken down and all is ready for the start. Colonel Adams, commanding; Captain Clayton, medical man in case of need; Lieutenant Allen, commanding the battery, ready for the march. Men in field kit and the fun of the three days is forgotten as they file out of the camp, to the merry tune of the bugle, blowing the "General."

But before starting keen-eyed sergeants had inspected all harness and horses, had looked to it that no strap untied, no blanket-roll loose. The privates and men on fatigue duty had gone over the camp to gather up the refuse and burn it, and as they marched out onto Milwaukee avenue they looked what they are, a fighting battery of a fighting regiment.

Lieutenant Osborne had trotted on ahead of the command with orders and corporals to point out the line of march. Down Milwaukee avenue they went—guns, engines, wagon train in the rear with some lead horses to form for the march. Across the river and up on the west side along the Evansville road towards Brooklyn.

About ten they will have halted for a hot dinner from the "hay" box and it will be in the neighborhood of four this afternoon before they reach tonight's camp-ground at Brooklyn, where supplies will be awaiting them.

Colonel Adams was most delighted with his stay in Janesville and he and his officers did everything to make the affair a success. The band was at the disposal of the committee during the entire stay and the individual members of the battery took considerable personal pride in its music and appearance on the bandstand and when mounted. They are proud of anything band and their only regret for anything that occurred here was the unfortunate mix-up with Mr. Koebelin, Sunday night last.

One sergeant made it his personal duty to notify the executive committee that the older men of the battery regretted it, that the culpable were known and that they would be punished. In fact, one enlisted man said he had been detailed to guard them on the coming march and would be most delighted to see them try to escape "just for the sake of taking a pot shot at them."

The battery was composed of an unusually fine lot of men. Many were serving their third enlistment and all were enthusiastic over Janesville and their treatment while here. The battery goes to Spanish where it meets the other detachments of their regiment for field practice until October. The men will live as they did here during their stay and will be in the fettle for any active duty at the end of the summer.

Horses Frightened: A team of horses became frightened during the auto parade last evening and created considerable excitement in front of the Myers Hotel. One fell down and in falling broke the pole, but otherwise they were undamaged. Experienced hands grabbed the animals before they could run and the occupants of the buggy were lifted out to safety. The team belonged to a farmer named Little.

RAILROAD COMMISSION ISSUES NEW ORDERS

Madison, Wis., July 6.—The Wisconsin railroad commission, operating under the public utilities law, proposes to make that law apply automatically in the reduction of rates to consumers without the necessity of public hearing and formal complaint and trial in each case.

This purpose was disclosed in the commission's decision announced yesterday afternoon, reducing the electric current rates of the Madison Gas & Electric company by about 14 per cent. This cut, which deprives the company of $24,000 annual revenue, was made without formal complaint and without public hearing. Immediately upon the establishment of the commission in 1903 a Madison newspaper started a public campaign to reduce the gas and electric rates, and improve the service. This resulted in a decision a year and a half ago substantially cutting the rates. Since then the commission has kept close track of the service and revenues of the company, and upon the discovery that a large increase of business resulted in profits greater than 8 per cent on the investment, the commission ordered an investigation upon its own motion. The company and the city stipulated to leave the matter to the commission and have no hearing, and yesterday's substantial rate cut resulted. It is proposed to keep this

COUNTY ASSOCIATION OF SUNDAY SCHOOLS MET HERE YESTERDAY

Officers Were Elected For Year and Plans Adopted For Broadening Work of Sunday Schools in Rock County.

Wednesday morning at ten o'clock, in the office of Charles W. Reeder, the Rock County Sunday School Association held a meeting and elected new officers. At this meeting the following officers were elected: Executive Grade Superintendent, Mrs. Pauline of Beloit; Intermediate Grade Superintendent, Mrs. Mae Cunningham of Janesville; Educational Superintendent, Rev. H. W. Roberts, Edgerton; Adult Class Superintendent, Rev. J. C. Hazen, Janesville; Superintendent of Home Department, Mrs. Mabel Horn, Janesville; Temperance Superintendent, H. R. Osborne, Milton; and Mission Superintendent, Mrs. H. K. Latta, Clinton. Representatives were present from Janesville, Milton Junction, Evansville, Clinton, Beloit and other Rock County points.

It was decided by the committee to invite the State Superintendent, W. J. Semeroff to meet the new officers and the executive committee for instructions for further work. In its business meeting, the Association took up the question of Home Missionary work and after discussion, decided on the following plan for its furtherance. The Association will ask all Sunday school teachers and Superintendents in Rock County to find out the names of all families in their neighborhood who are not connected with some church; and also to find out the children preference. Having done this, the teacher will report to the district superintendent of that district, who will either make a personal visit to the family or write them a personal letter; they will also write to the pastor of the preferred church and to the Sunday school superintendent, telling them of the family. In this way, the Association hopes to extend the fruits of the Sunday school in each parish so that the different parishes will overlap and thus accomplish the work which otherwise would have to be done by organizing more Sunday schools. This plan will have the advantage over the summer mission Sunday schools, that it will get the children in a permanent school and not in one that lasts only for two months.

By this new plan, the Association intends to remove some of the responsibility, which they have been carrying from their shoulders and placing it upon those who should rightfully carry it, the Sunday school superintendents and the pastors of the various churches. Under the new system, each district superintendent will work locally in person, and by correspondence with others; each man will endeavor to be a specialist in his line of work and to make it as beneficial to his parish as is possible.

MEN HELD AT COUNTY JAIL WERE RELEASED YESTERDAY
Some Fifteen or Sixteen Locked Up During Celebration Allowed to Go.

Fifteen or sixteen men who were guests of Sheriff Hanson over the Fourth, left the city for parts unknown yesterday afternoon, at the invitation of the sheriff. Drunks picked up by the police on the streets during the last two days of the celebration were lodged in the county jail, some thirty-two being taken there. A number of suspects, thought to have been "dips" or pickpockets, were also thrown in and viewed the big parade through the bars. Yesterday those remaining were turned out by the sheriff and in response to an urgent request made by that official, left the city.

Ingenuous Old Clock.
Wells (Eng.) has a wonderful clock one of the oldest in the world, which dates from 1325. When it strikes the hour four lights on horseshoe go riding round, and the seated man ticks two small bells with his heels, as he has been doing every fifteen minutes for high on six centuries. This clock was the work of Peter Lightfoot, another monk of Clantonbury.

Nitrogen in Animal Charcoal.
Why animal charcoal removes the color from colored liquids, while wood charcoal has no effect, has not been understood. A European chemist now finds that the action of the former is due to the presence of five to seven per cent of nitrogen.

Wichita has taken over the Wolfington franchise in the Kansas State League.

The Hopkinsville team has a big lead in the Kitty League and is going strong.

The Western League teams have locked Don Mooney in the cellar and thrown the key away.

The Rannoko team is crowding Norfolk at the top of the list in the Virginia League struggle.

The Reading and Trenton teams are having a merry battle for the honors in the Tri-State League.

Rockford and Green Bay are putting up a great fight for first place in the Wisconsin-Illinois League.

It looks like a toss-up between Lowell, Worcester and Lawrence for the middle in the New England League.

The Hattiesburg team, of the Cotton States League, has a pair of swell performers in Outfielder Smith and Pitcher Eaton.

If Calgary can keep up its present fast clip, the team will be hard to beat for the Western Canada league pennant.

Piqua has a regular ball player in First baseman Rehl. He is a clever fielder and leads the Ohio State League in batting.

Major league scouts are on the trail of Pitcher Cullup of the Knoxville team in the Appalachian League. Cullup has quite an assortment of fancy flatters.

The Connecticut team will finish the season with six teams in the circuit on account of Northampton and Holyoke catching cold in the feet and quitting the pastime.

Frank Arellanes, formerly of the Boston Red Sox, who frankly admits he is the handsomest man in the Pacific Coast League, is twisting them over for the Sacramento club.

Chickery "Chickery" Johnson and Pitcher Joe Willis, of the Decatur Three-L league team, are booked to cut in big league hotels, so the said McGraw wants Johnson and the Cubs are after Willis.

Most Powerful Poison.

From the microbes which give rise in human beings to the disease known as tetanus, or lockjaw, a poison called tetanin is obtained which is over 100 times more powerful than strychnine. A fragment of tetanin so small as to be invisible to the naked eye would kill almost instantaneously the strongest man. One fifteen-thousandth part of a grain of it has caused the death of a horse 1,600,000,000 times its own weight.

CUMMINS SCORES TAFT FOR RECIPROCITY TALK

Declares If President's Indianapolis Speech Explains Canadian Bill Congress Better Adjourn.

Washington, July 6.—Senator Cummins in the senate made a savage oratorical assault on President Taft's reciprocity speech at Indianapolis July 4. The Iowa declared that if the president was to be taken at his word in the Indiana address congress ought to adjourn at once.

"When the president abandons the duties of his office and enters upon a campaign to mold or lead public opinion on this reciprocity bill," said Mr. Cummins, "then he is on the same level as every other man and cannot be exempt from the criticism to be attached to the arguments he uses."

"I do not criticize the president for trying to mold public opinion in favor of this agreement. It is better for him to go through the country trying to influence public opinion than it would be for him to use the power of his great office to carry this bill through congress."

He declared that if the president's speech was to be taken as the explanation of the purposes of the Canadian bill congress had better adjourn.

"I believe this special session of 1911 will be known in history as the session that more firmly fastened on the people and the country the burdens of special tariff privileges."

Senator Burton of Ohio made a notable speech in behalf of the Canadian reciprocity bill. He declared that reciprocity was the "ultimate destiny" of Canada and the United States.

Senator Penrose succeeded in getting consent to have the sessions of the senate begin daily at 11 o'clock a. m. instead of at noon as heretofore.

The final stages of the reciprocity debate therefore are entered upon with a determination to keep the ship constantly headed directly into the wind. Without cessation or lagging the men in charge of the reciprocity bill will insist upon the debate going forward. At the suggestion of a gap in the talk a vote will be demanded.

The outlook now is for a vote by August 1 at the latest.

BOY SCOUTS ARE FIRE HEROES.

Company From Hull House Prevents Big Loss of Life at Muskegon.

Muskegon, Mich., July 6.—Quick work by Boy Scouts from Hull House, Chicago, probably saved the lives of a score of persons following the explosion of fireworks at Lake Michigan Park. Three persons were injured and the sheriff's force is endeavoring to fix the blame. The scouts were near by when the first of the big pile of fireworks began to explode prematurely. Some of them pulled aside and covered over a large portion of fireworks which had not yet been ignited, while others rushed to the rescue of babes and fainting women, reviving them hurriedly and helping them to places of safety.

BLAZE IMPERILS INSANE FELONS

Fire Breaks Out in Ionia (Mich.) Prison—Loss $25,000.

Ionia, Mich., July 6.—Fire which started in the kitchen of the dining room building at the prison for the criminal insane threatened for a time to reach the main prison. Spontaneous combustion is supposed to have been the cause.

The loss of the burned building and contents is $25,000.

During the fire the inmates of the prison were in an uproar, yelling hideously, but the situation was handled without trouble by the prison officers and guards.

When the fire was at its worst all the cells were unlocked and made ready to be opened in case it became necessary to move the 518 prisoners.

THAT INVESTIGATION.

Wisconsin as a state, is interested in the possible outcome of the proposed investigation of the election of United States Senator Isaac Stephenson by the United States senate.

The New York Tribune handles the matter in the following manner:

"An interesting phase of the possible investigation of the election of Senator Stephenson of Wisconsin, is being discussed by senators today. Senator Stephenson was for many years the political backer of Robert M. La Follette, and being a man of large means, did not hesitate to spend his wealth generously to advance the political fortunes of La Follette. In fact, it is estimated by those in a position to know that Mr. Stephenson spent not less than $50,000 to make Robert M. La Follette a political possibility in Wisconsin. He sunk large sums in a newspaper devoted to the promotion of La Follette's interests, and his checkbook was always handy whenever the political fortunes of his protégé were in need of pecuniary stimulation.

"There is, of course, considerable question as to whether the senate will consent to investigate the election of Senator Stephenson, in view of the fact that by one investigation of the Wisconsin legislature he was completely exonerated of the charge of improper use of funds to effect his election and of the further fact that the charges now preferred are the same as those formerly investigated, their resuscitation at this time being due solely to the fact that Senator La Follette and Senator Stephenson have quarreled and that the La Follette faction is now in control of the Wisconsin legislature.

"Should there be an investigation, however, it will doubtless be of sufficiently broad scope to bring to light some highly interesting facts in connection with the methods of which La Follette secured his political start."

THE WAR IS OVER.

The great military demonstration under the auspices of the United Spanish War Veterans and the Industrial and Commercial club is over. The soldiers have all gone, the carnival company has passed into the realm of yesterday, and now comes the cleaning up and rearing of what has happened.

"Taking it all in all it was a big affair and much credit is due the police department for the able manner in which they handled the streets and

Would Exempt Animals From Duty.

Washington, July 6.—To relieve the owners of American dogs and horses from the payment of duty on the animals when taken abroad and returned to the United States, Representative Underwood has prepared an amendment to the Payne-Aldrich tariff law.

The amendment will exempt from duty cattle, horses, sheep and other domestic animals returned to this country within six months.

The younger Underwood declared he had not received any private information from Paris, but was making the trip solely upon statements in the newspapers regarding his father.

There is a marvelous parallel, or likeness, between the lives of Napoleon Bonaparte and the Duke of Wellington. Napoleon was born in Corsica, an island near the coast of France; Wellington was born in Ireland, an island near the coast of England.

Both were born the same year, 1769. Each lost his father when he was sixteen years old. The mother of each was left with a large family of children, in poor circumstances. Each had four brothers and three sisters. Both attended military school in France at the same time. They became lieutenant-colonels within one day of each other. Both were good mathematicians, and fond of figures. Both are said to have borne a remarkable physical resemblance to Julius Caesar, and if this is true they must have resembled each other. Each became a great soldier, and the commander of an immense army. But at Waterloo one became the victor and the other the vanquished.

UNDERWOOD BILL'S TERMS OUT.

Cut Averaging 50 Per Cent. on All Cotton Goods Provided.

New York, July 6.—A Washington dispatch to the Herald says: The main features of the Underwood bill, a draft of which will be considered by the ways and means committee of the house, are as follows:

A substantial cut on all cotton goods and fabrics, the average of which will be in the neighborhood of 50 per cent. of the present law.

Ad valorem rates in every instance to take the place of the compound rates now in force.

No reduction in the amount of revenue now obtained from these commodities, which is $23,000,000 a year. There will be, perhaps, an increase in revenue.

Each duty written strictly on the revenue basis—that is, at a point where it will bring in the most revenue to the government regardless of the protection of home manufacturers.

PANIC PREVAILS IN LONDON.

Fierce Fight Is Waged by Troops With Revolting Seamen.

London, July 6.—Dispatches received by a London news agency from Lisbon say that a great fight has taken place between the populace and the seamen quartered in barracks in the city.

The seamen, incited by monarchist agitators, attempted to raise an armed revolt. Revolvers and knives were used with deadly effect.

The government called out all available troops, both cavalry and infantry, and after severe fighting managed to quell the revolt and restore order.

A state of panic prevails, according to these dispatches, and elaborate precautions are being taken by the authorities to suppress any further revolutionary movement.

GATES' ILLNESS RECALLS SON.

American Financier's Condition Is Reported More Serious.

New York, July 6.—Just before the Mauretania left her pier Charles G. Gates went aboard, having engaged passage at the last minute because of alarming news regarding the condition of his father, John W. Gates, who is ill in Paris.

Cable dispatches from Paris gave the impression that the former Wall street plunger and steel and oil man had suffered a relapse and is now in a grave condition.

The younger Gates declared he had not received any private information from Paris, but was making the trip solely upon statements in the newspapers regarding his father.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

SHE IS usually as well dressed as any woman she is with. And yet everybody knows who has far less means than most of her companions.

Her plan of action is to buy very nice, though simple things and then keep them looking well about twice as long as the average woman.

Everybody wonders how she accomplishes this. Here are some of the unalike of the trick as explained to one wonderer.

"In the first place, I never buy anything that is cheap or shoddy or extreme in any way. I am willing to pay well for good lines and good materials. If necessary, I economize on trimmings. Consequently, my things will always be all right for three or four seasons if I keep them well.

"I always have on hand in summer a plain sailor hat which I can wear in stormy or even damp or threatening weather. Such a hat will last me three or four seasons and the saving to my nice hats is incalculable.

"In winter I have a felt sailor for the same purpose. I always have a good looking rain coat and wear it when there is any danger of a storm. Nothing makes a coat grow old faster than wetting it. A suit that I never worn or caught in a storm will look well just about twice as long as one that has had several such experiences.

"I always keep two or three pairs of shoes going and keep those not in use on shoeboxes. You know one pair of shoes worn constantly will go to pieces much more quickly because they never get a chance to get rid of the animal heat which rots the leather.

"I also change my stockings at least three or four times a week. They wear longer that way.

"I have a full set of skirt and coat hangers and keep all my corsets and suits on them when not in use.

"I never take off a hat without brushing it thoroughly with a stiff hat brush.

"I polish my shoes at least three times a week. You know that softens and preserves the leather as well as keeping them looking well.

"I keep a pair of storm shoes and try never to get my good shoes wet. 'Don't all this take a lot of time and planning?'

"It certainly does, my friend.

"But was ever anything worth while accomplished without some outlay? I can't spend as much money as my friends, so I try to make it up in time and thought.

"Either eternal vigilance or eternal pocket money is the price of being well dressed. I pay the former."

Heart and Home Talks

By Barbara Boyd

Some Women We Ought to Know

Louisa Stewart and All the Noble Army of Martyrs.

IN this practical age, our feeling in regard to martyrs is apt to be rather hazy. If we give any definite thought to them, it is, with some of us, only to think how foolish they were. Others of us have a feeling of pity that they left so good a world for what seems at poor a reason, for in this reasonable age of ours, martyrdom appears so unnecessary. And in the end, most of us conclude that martyrs belong to the past anyway, and so, scarcely need to be considered, except as playing a necessary part in history.

But a certain window in the Cathedral at Liverpool wakes us out of this apathy, if it so be that this is our state of mind toward martyrs. For it tells us up to the fact that there are modern martyrs, and aroused a very sincere and keen admiration for them. It shows that the world is not given over entirely to commercial interests and comfortable living; but that the spirit that inspired the Crusaders and Savonarola and Wycliffe and many others who suffered for a cause dear to them is still alive. And for the moment, it thrills us, and gives us a glimpse of a larger and more beautiful life than is ours.

The window in the Cathedral at Liverpool is to Louisa Stewart and All the Noble Army of Martyrs. Louisa Stewart is known to few, but she is a martyr of the last twenty years. She and her husband, the Reverend Robert Warren Stewart, were connected with the Divinity School at Fuh Chow, China. He was principal of the school, and both took their part in training native evangelists. In 1877, the college was wrecked by a mob, and Mrs. Stewart barely escaped. After further unaided efforts, there, a move was made to Ku-Cheng, who a Mr. Stewart undertook work, in connection with the C. M. S. in the province of Fuh-Kien. In the spring of 1886, the war between China and Japan had aroused a strong feeling against everything foreign, and on August 1st, a savage attack was made by an anti-foreign band known as "Vegetarians," on the Mission Station at Ili-Sang, in which Mr. and Mrs. Stewart were among the victims.

A window is now erected to her memory in the Cathedral at Liverpool among the hundred or more dedicated to the deeds of good women. It commemorates at the same time, the noble army of martyrs who have kept alive and carried forward, even at the expense of their lives, the torch of truth, that has with greater and greater effulgence enlightened the world.

Most of us think, of course, that all this is outside of our sphere of work or influence. We do not want to go as missionaries, and we have no particular desire to be martyrs. This is true and in this special field, we can perhaps do little.

But we can lend a voice and an influence to further the peace movement, and to bring about all over the world, a public opinion for peace. This will gradually have its effect in preventing wars. And then those who are teaching and preaching in far distant countries can do so in safety, at least, in greater safety than they can at present, when the slightest national irritation, arouses the war spirit, and brings into life the mob violence that resulted in the death of Louisa Stewart.

The Kitchen Cabinet

NO WOMEN need envy the sphinx her wisdom, if she has learned the uses of silence and never adds a word to a hungry man.

SPRING LAMB.

Now that lamb is coming into the market plentifully, a few methods of preparing it may be welcome. One of the prettiest ways of serving lamb is the crown roast. Two racks of lamb are required for the roast from seven to eleven ribs in each; fasten them together in a circle and wrap pieces of salt pork over each exposed rib to keep them from browning. Remove them when the roast is done and serve with a mound of peas in the center or a bunch of parsley and larded potatoes around the outside.

For a breast of lamb with dressing, make the dressing as you would for veal or fowl. Part the meaty skin from the ribs and fill the space with dressing, then sew up. Rub the meat with salt, pepper and a little onion juice before putting in the stuffing. If sufficient stuffing cannot be covered in this way, put it into the caul, the membrane that surrounds the internal organs, and lay it beside the roast.

Leg of Lamb.—When a leg of lamb is roasted it is often boned and stuffed. The bone, however, adds greatly to the flavor of the meat, and so is best left in for ordinary occasions. Serve the leg of lamb, if boned, with caper sauce or a white sauce to which two hard-cooked eggs chopped fine have been added.

Lamb may be eaten soon after the animal has been killed. Mutton is better to hang, and ripen.

A most appetizing dish of lamb chops are prepared by boiling them, and after they are cool spread with a seasoned white sauce made very thick, using a third of a cup of butter and the same amount of flour to a cup of milk and add a few tablespoonsful of cold boiled ham, finely chopped. When well chilled dip in egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Lamb With Cream Sauce.—Cut two pounds of lamb from the back in small pieces, dust with salt and pepper and fry a golden brown in butter. Add a cup of broth or water, and cook for a few minutes, then add two tablespoonsful of flour mixed with half a cup of sour cream and pour this over. Cook for an hour on the back part of the stove.

SAINTLY EMBOZZERED COSTUME.

A panel back effect with the modish sailor collar is illustrated in the sketch shown today, and presents the rather unusual feature of a dainty design in embroidery, outlining the panel and collar. The effect is exceedingly attractive on cream batiste, with the design in blue and pink flowers and pale green leaves. The embroidery is also carried about the cuffs and the deep side border of the skirt.

EDNA McCANDLESS

BELLE OF THE SUNNY SOUTH.

Atlanta, Ga.—Pronounced the most beautiful of southern belles, Miss Edna McCandless has won her way to the top of social recognition, not only in the United States, but abroad. The young woman is tall, willowy and winsome of the blonde type. Her large blue eyes are surrounded by delicately arched eyebrows. She is musical and has a soprano voice of unusual talent. She has studied in Paris and was presented at the Court of St. James the same time as were the Duchess de Chaulness and Miss Marguerite Shonts. Miss McCandless devotes much of her time to charity and philanthropy.

FADS AND FASHIONS

New York, July 6.—Delightful summer frocks in bewildering variety are shown in the shops at this time and those who make the rounds of the shops, with a view of purchasing one of these frocks, find it extremely difficult to choose. All waist lines are high; not high enough to be empire or directoire, but sufficiently above the normal to give a cunning, youthful look to little summer frocks.

This accentuating of the high waist line is due, some dressmakers insist, to a reaction from the straight front corset, which, while it has wrought marvels in the improvement of nature's figures, lengthens the waist and belittles the hips. The high waistline is really more youthful and on slender figures it is charming. Suches seem to belong naturally with girlish, short-waisted frocks and almost every midsummer costume this season has its such look, with or without ends, at the back of the bodice.

The velvet sash may seem a bit cumbersome for midsummer wear in America, where the humidity brings a weather condition absolutely unknown in Paris; but in Paris, just now, these velvet sashes are considered extremely chic.

A Paris frock, worn in London during Coronation week, had three very thin, scant flounces of black chiffon on a white chiffon skirt, of course, balanced this arrangement of flounces at the back. Everything that comes out of Paris this year has the touch of black that proclaims it Parisian. There may be only a tiny line of black piping at the neck, or a sprinkling of black buttons on a chiffon vest, or perhaps the sash. Chiffon sashes are extremely graceful, but, of course, the material must be substantially weighted in order that it shall not fly about and spoil the lines of the frock.

Just now there seems to be a perfect craze for a certain deep, brilliant red shade, the royal red of coronation cloaks. Some of the Paris dressmakers have sewed out whole frocks in this blazing color, and, as exercise by this blaring color, and as a contrast to the white, navy blue and red, but red is not a color that is comfortable to have about in dog-day weather in America, however much they may like it in London for patriotic reasons, or in Paris, where humidity is unknown. Green is more favored in America, and many of the handsomest costumes for summer wear, that are shown in the shops, are of that color.

The long straight lines which, as already stated, are inseparable from the modern mode adapt themselves admirably to the slenderness of the youthful figure, and the debutantes of this year may be congratulated upon the fact that they are not required to exploit fashions that are in the least degree exaggerated or outré. On the contrary, they are even now being encouraged to attire themselves in garments which show none of the eccentricities of the hobble skirt on one hand or the jupe cabote on the other.

A happy medium as regards both length and width will characterize all the skirts of those frocks which are intended for young people, while in the matter of color only the daintiest and most delicate shades will be in request. Pale Quaker-gray will be one of the favorite tints for young girls' summer frocks, and some of the prettiest of these dresses are carried out in gray silk voile, and trimmed with Cluny lace. Inexpensive dyed to match the color of the voile. These frocks are worn with gray suede shoes and gloves and gray, openwork silk stockings.

There is a great variety of summer blouses in the market this season. Nearly all of them are pretty and attractive. For tennis and golf special blouses are necessary, as the sheer muslin in lingerie and lace and hand embroidery are altogether out of place on tennis court and golf links. There are charming all weave blouses, which though made with a semblance of trimness and severity, are of sheer fine lawn or linen the exquisite daintiness of which belies the severity of their finish. There are also handkerchief blouses in white and color which, even when made up in tailored fashion, stubbornly refuse to look anything but frivolously feminine.

Some of these blouses in stripes of white and color, buff, pink, blue, lavender, etc., are made up in the simplest fashion without plaits or tucks, with a pocket on the left side, long skirt sleeves and wristbands, and with a white stock and cravat of the linen or with turn down neckless collar either of white or of the stripe. The same materials are used for blouses with short sleeves and sailor or other turn-down collars, as severe in finish as the others but a trifle less conventional.

This latter style is to be found also in white linen and is as comfortable as anything one could imagine for hot weather outfit use, though the effect is rather youthful and the low collar is not becoming to all. Such blouses in the very fine light weight French plaques are still better than the linen models, because they must less quickly get worn as well and have no transparent effect. Worn with skirts to match or separate skirts they invariably look well.

The pretty white-striped or plain silken serge, either black or navy blue, are the great vogue of the moment with regard to tailored suits in Paris, and charming they are indeed with their simple row of buttons on the side or down the front, their broad collar of white lace, satin, or silk poplin and cuffs to match.

The vogue of navy blue and white has in no way decreased; indeed, blue dresses with white revers and trimmings, or white frocks with dark blue accoutrements, are the order of the day. Hats naturally follow suit, and dark blue straw, Tanal, or Yedda or linen shoes are plentifully trimmed with Florence silk or muslin flowers forming wreaths, shawes or aprons of foliage. The latter in pure white upon dark blue are eminently smart, while a large navy blue hat seen recently at the races, trimmed to match with navy blue silkine pommes, leaves and buds, was much admired.

Pretty light check costumes for morning wear have the collar, lapels and cuffs of plain anti-faced cloth, silk, or ottoman and a three-inch deep hem of similar plain cloth or satin, upon which the skirt is apparently buttoned, the plain hand giving the impression an underskirt. Another attractive fashion is the narrow apron, either in front or on the side, upon which the skirt is buttoned with five or seven buttons, or buttons and loops of satin.

With up-to-date navy blue costumes

There is a return to an old-time and charming fashion, that of trimming with narrow bias folds of Scotch tartan buffets in greens and blues, lightly barred with crimson, yellow and white. These make highly effective cuffs.

FARM NOTES.

Not Written for Farmers.
By H. L. RANS.

Now is a good time to look over the calves' heads for warts. If there is no corn doctor in the neighborhood remove the warts with a drawshave, beginning at the southwest corner of the wart and working due east.

If the calf is inclined to be restive under this treatment, soothe her with an axe handle laid firmly across the nose. If she recovers from this treatment who will live to be eighty years old.

Never allow the hired man to read Shakespeare or Carlyle while riding the corn cultivator. We knew a hired hand who devoured Emerson's "Essays" while thus engaged, and he became so absorbed that the team backed him into a barbed wire fence and ripped the lining from his abdominal cavity.

A prominent poultryman of St. Louis says that the hen which keeps late hours is as rank a failure as the attempt to graft sideburns on the goat. He is right about it. Every hen should have a time clock, and the hen should be required to check in before pulling down the blinds. Nothing is more repulsive than the sight of a disheveled hen trying to bring light and hope to a dozen chicks after a parade on the Great White Way. Insist on your hens responding to the curfew.

A Brooklyn man has invented an egg-tester which will make a pullet ashamed to look her offspring in the face. This tester does the work of four men and a candlestick. You can toss an egg into it and the egg will come out with the pure food law stamped on its bosom. This device makes it impossible for the housewife to break an egg with a full heart into the coffee, and on that account its use ought to be encouraged.

One Kind of Greatness.
There is a kind of greatness which does not depend upon fortune; it is a certain manner that distinguishes us, and which seems to destiny us for great things; it is the value we place on things, and it is this which commonly raises us more above them than birth, rank or even merit itself. —La Rochefoucauld: "Reflections."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

DANDERINE
GROWS HAIR and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes: "As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether mismanaged. The hair itself is the thing that is treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention it results are to be expected. It would be an earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows (the hair grows) must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture and nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has already lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions).

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and rehydrate the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Known to Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effect of the wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities. The 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

BATTLES WON BY RIGHT FEEDING.

An army marches on its stomach. This is a well-established principle in warfare. A hungry man cannot fight long, and a general whose brain is clouded by 'auto-intoxication' cannot conceive brilliant or wise movements.

Every nation considers carefully what ration will best support the man behind the gun—at least in war time—and some have won great victories by superior feeding, notably the Japanese, in the contest with Russia.

The Roman gladiators were fed on rye and wheat, and the modern athlete is very carefully fed by the scientific trainer. Only the average man who has the battle of life to fight gets no dietetic training.

KIDNEY DISEASES ARE CURABLE
Under certain conditions. The right medicine must be taken before the disease has progressed too far. Mr. Perry A. Pittman, Dale, Tex., says: "I was down in bed for four months with kidney and bladder trouble and gall stones. One bottle of Foley's Kidney Remedy cured me well and sound." DEBUT OF JOHN PAUL JONES.

July 6.—John Paul Jones made his debut on the stage of the living July 6, 1757. He was a Scotchman, also a sailor, who made a number of trips to Virginia as an apprentice of a ship, and hung out his shingle at Solway Firth. The merchant went broke and John Paul went to America. When the Revolution broke out Jones was living in poverty at Fredericksburg, Virginia, and he offered Congress his services for the navy then forming. Congress listened to the plans of the young Scotchman and he was placed on the committee to purchase vessels. In the summer of 1775 he had frightened the English out of their wits by sailing up and down their coast and capturing everything worth while. In midsummer of 1775 he was placed in command of the Bon Homme Richard and on September 23, off Flamborough Head, he fought the fight with the Serapis, which made his name immortal. During the engagement the flag of the American ship was lost in the smoke. "Has your ship struck?" asked Capt. Pearson of the Serapis. "I haven't begun to fight yet," said Jones as the hand grenades of his crew set the Serapis on fire. This made the contest too hot for the English captain, so he surrendered his sword to Jones and asked him to please call the fire department.

Where's One?

"There used to be a famous steer in Missouri named 'Ever Onward.'"

"That would be a fine name for a mule, if one could be found that wouldn't balk."

PROPERTY IS SAVED FROM DESTRUCTION BY THE BOY SCOUTS

Leaders of Scout Movement Throughout Country, State That Economic Value of Order Amounts to Millions Each Year.

With a permanent organization of Boy Scouts in Jansville, citizens are anxious to know what the order will mean to the boys of the city and what will be the practical results. Leaders of the movement all over the country are strong in the assertion that the scouts, by their training and the direction of their active spirits toward useful ends, have brought about a conservation of property which means millions of dollars to the country every year.

Jansville people have noted and remarked, within the short time which the order has been established here, the marked improvement in manners and actions of the boys associated with the Scouts. This also has had its effect on boys who have not as yet become members.

One of the values of the Scout organization lies in the prevention of malicious mischief and crime among boys growing out of the "gang" instinct and in the instruction of boys to do constructive things. Boys naturally get together in crowds, have their leaders, and plan various stunts. If the boys are extremely energetic and have any tendency towards destruction they are likely to do damage to a great amount of property.

Destruction Prevented. The damage to property which boys can do was shown by the recent investigation into the Police Department of New York. Many of the complaints that one of the greatest difficulties with which they have to contend is the mischief done by boys. They have destroyed thousands of dollars' worth of property. Through the scout and west sides of the city, thousands of mischievous boys destroy fences, break windows, damage houses and do many other little things that as a whole amount to a great deal.

One of the aims of the Boy Scout movement is to prevent this destruction of property. The leaders of the Boy Scout organization recognize the gang instinct and are seeking to develop it along proper lines. They understand that boys have lots of energy, want to have fun, and want to be busy doing things. They understand clearly that if this tendency of the boy is not turned to good use, it results in evil and malicious mischief. Accordingly, leaders in the local organization at New York are planning to form more troops in different parts of the city. They want to get the boys interested. They want them to engage in activities that will train them physically, and be of use to them in after life.

Usefulness the Aim. Throughout the country this aim of turning the energies of boys into usefulness rather than to urge the destruction of property is going on. Reports from all over the country indicate that the aim of the Boy Scout leaders is being attained. The Boy Scouts in Jersey are fighting the mosquitoes. Out in Kansas they are trying to clear off the blizzards in New Hampshire and Ohio the Scouts are doing everything possible to protect the birds. In almost every State in the Union, they are planting trees. Boys like to help the firemen and the police, and in various cities the chiefs of police, realizing that a boy's help is much better than his annoyance, are training the boys in police work and various activities. The firemen are training the boys how to act quickly in case of fire and many instances have been recorded of the catching of thieves and the saving of lives of people by Boy Scouts.

RAIN PREDICTED FOR JULY EXCEPT IN THE SECTIONS OF DROUTH

Foster Weather Bureau Gives Out Bulletin Covering Weather Conditions For Remainder of Month.

With the hot wave of the first of the month forecasted and the present storm period and rains also predicted, the Foster weather bureau sends out the following forecast for the remainder of the month of July:

Next disturbances will reach Pacific coast about July 7, cross Pacific slope by close of 8, great central valleys 9 to 11, eastern sections 12. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about July 7, great central valleys 9, eastern sections 11. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about July 10, great central valleys 12, eastern sections 14.

Another Hot Wave. This will be another hot wave storm but good rains will be more probable than in the preceding disturbances. Where the drought continues all other weather signs fail. The disturbances develop nothing but heat and all the other weather features fail to appear. Because of these facts any storm wave forecasted seem to fall in drought sections. In those drought sections the reader should expect a hot wave instead of the regular storm wave weather features. The cool wave following this disturbance will bring lower temperatures than usual.

While July is not expected to be an exceedingly stormy month the storms will be more than usually numerous and a few of them severe; most severe not far from July 4, 10, and August 1. The fourth disturbance of July will reach Pacific coast about 11, cross Pacific slope by close of 12, great central valleys 13 to 15, eastern sections 16. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about July 11, great central valleys 13, eastern sections 15. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about July 14, great central valleys 16, eastern sections 18.

Drought and the Crops. This will be a low temperature, disturbance and promises good rains in many places. Principal rains will come with next disturbance.

The predicted drought for May and June was more in the southwest parts of the great central than was expected. The general effects of the drought on the crops have been in accord with the forecasts, but some localities in the north and northeast got more rain than was expected.

During the latter months of 1910 these bulletins exposed the falsity of the reports that crops were greater than ever before produced and because of a 1911 expected drought farmers were advised not to sell hay, oats and corn. But oats were beaten down to 20, corn to 36 and those who sold against the advice of these bulletins now regret.

ARCHBISHOP SOLVES MEMBERSHIP MATTER IN MILTON JUNCTION

Writes Dean Reilly and Father Goebel To Make Fair Division of Catholic Families.

To settle any difference of opinion that might be held with reference to membership in the Milton Junction parish, Archbishop Messmer has written to Dean Reilly and Father Goebel in this city explaining the rules which are to be followed in determining to which parish the families in question belong. About twenty-five families are affected by these rules and the Archbishop's letter, which follows is self explanatory.

"It is absolutely necessary, that the rule established by me under date of July 7th, 1910, regarding membership in Milton Junction parish, should be properly understood by the Catholic people and families concerned. Hence I kindly request you to announce in your church next Sunday, that all families that live nearer to the Milton Junction church, than to any of the Jansville churches are bound to go to Milton Junction church of the Immaculate Conception and that they cannot any longer be admitted to membership either in St. Patrick's or St. Mary's church. This is simply the general rule of the Diocese applied to this particular instance. Any and all exceptions to this rule must be laid before me and by me be approved.

"The rule being of great importance in view of the religious needs of the Catholic families, no exceptions will be granted except for very grave reasons."

"SHADOWS" WAIT OUTSIDE. Clarence S. Funk, right, general manager of the International Harvester Company, with his attorney as they were leaving the committee room where Funk has been giving testimony on the Lathrop election investigation.

Washington, D. C.—The "shadows" of Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester Co., will be held up by the committee investigating the Lathrop election as examples and probably will not be called to the witness stand to reveal the names of their employers and the work to which they had been assigned. For three months these men have been trailing every step of Mr. Funk and have frequently made life unpleasant for him. The committee has determined that the shadowing of witnesses, who have been summoned to appear before them must cease.

Use of Attar of Roses. More than $50,000 worth of attar of roses is brought into this country every year. The host is from roses grown near Constantinople. Not only does this bring a higher price than the product of the Bulgarian rose fields, but its superiority is recognized by a separate classification in the trade. Where does the $50,000 worth of this attar perfume go? Some of it as "base" for other perfumes, and some of it where few suspect—to the manufacturers of smoking and chewing tobacco.

Companionable to the Young. Engaged with home obligations the mother is never in a position to appreciate as her sister in the commercial field does, the wisdom of being companionable with the youthful boy and girl; of knowing every single detail which affects their young lives, of keeping in touch with every playmate and knowing every move the youngsters make. A little tact and diplomacy will work wonders in ascertaining facts worth knowing.

The Wealthy Ones of Earth. Taking into account Australia and all of the islands of the tropical seas, the world may have 10,000 millions of acres, outside of North America and Europe, Russia excluded. The United States alone must have more millions than the total for continents which contain two-thirds of the people in the world.

Washington, D. C.—I like to meet Mr. Sheppard's commitments and try to keep as close in touch as possible with the big affairs in which he is taking part," said Mrs. Morris Sheppard the charming and accomplished wife of Congressman Sheppard of Texas. Before her marriage Mrs. Sheppard was Lucy Sanderson of Texas. She was graduated from Beloit Central Seminary in Washington and is a very accomplished musician. A five months old daughter, Miss Janet, takes up much of her time and keeps her home a great deal. Whenever it is possible, she travels with her husband when he is on a speech making tour and is greatly interested in politics. The people of Texas know her almost as well as they do her husband, because she has so frequently visited the centers of population with him on his political campaigns.

DOING OF THE VAN LOONS—Well, Father got his inheritance at last.

BRITZ HEADQUARTERS

BY MARION BARBER

ILLUSTRATIONS BY J. H. BERRY

"What do you mean, sir?" she asked with a pretty show of indignation. "Now, don't try any of those games on me," said Britz. In his impatience, he was descending close to the methods of Connelly and Carson. He remembered that in a moment and resumed more pleasantly:

"It will save you a great deal of trouble for you, Mrs. Delaroché, if you tell me the truth, and tell it at once, without holding anything back. You understand, I am a detective from Police Headquarters, and I was assigned weeks ago to find Mrs. Missioner's diamonds. I have found the diamonds, and now I must find the thief."

Mrs. Delaroché shivered, and started slowly to her feet. She turned a disdainful glance on the group at the door, then faced Britz once more, and in a voice little more than a whisper, she said:

"Whatever you may think, I did not know the jewels were stolen. I did not know they were stolen to Mrs. Missioner. I never heard of Mrs. Missioner before tonight, except through the papers. I did not know that any of my acquaintances knew her. I was not aware she had lost her diamonds. What you tell me about the theft of a necklace from Mrs. Missioner is entirely new to me. I seldom read the papers, and when I do, I do not read accounts of crime."

"All you say may be true," Britz persisted, "but you may take my word for it—the jewels are Mrs. Missioner's; they were stolen from her, and you must tell me the name of the person who gave them to you."

The beautiful woman's distress at this time was so sincere that the Headquarters man involuntarily dealt more gently with her. He urged her to be seated again, and then for the first time apparently remembered his hands still were gripped by the bands of steel the house detective had snapped upon them.

"Madam, I must insist once more that you tell me the man's name," Britz said.

"His name?" she returned wonderingly.

"Is it Curtis Griswold, isn't it?" said the Headquarters man incisively.

Mrs. Delaroché, with a little cry which showed more emotion than any one would expect from so self-centered a woman, sprang to her feet and advanced toward Britz with hands outstretched in protest.

"You don't mean to say that you believe Mr. Griswold to be a thief?" she exclaimed.

"We shall see, madam," rejoined Britz, "how successful he has been in at least one robbery."

"Inside this little casket," he said, "are jewels worth more than half a million dollars. Please let me have the key to this jewel box."

Reluctantly, she fastened a slender gold chain that hung about her neck, from which depended a tiny silver key. Britz fitted it into the lock and turned the bolt. Triumphant, he seized the lid, and as everyone else in the room focused eager eyes upon the silver box, Britz opened it; then dropped it on the table with a furious exclamation.

The box was empty!

CHAPTER XXII.

Hot on the Scent.

Britz bounded into the inner room and made a quick examination of every window. He found marks on one of the casements that told his practiced eye entry to the apartment had been made through the window by some one skilled in daring burglary. It gazed on the fire escape. Britz flung up the sash and looked out. As he expected, there was a long string of ladders and balconies that ended one story above the street. The fire escape was at the least frequented end of the big hotel, and an awning threw a shadow from an air lamp on the globe big enough to afford opportunity for an agile man to mount on the shoulders of comrades, grasp the secondary window and swing himself up unobserved. He let his eyes fall on the balcony one story below the window. On it lay something yellow, crumpled as if dropped inadvertently. Britz ran down the ladder and returned to the room with the object. It was an Oriental handkerchief such as he had seen in the Swami's possession.

It was perfectly plain to Britz that the Hindoo had been beforehand with him in recovering the Missioner jewels. By this time he knew enough to be certain that their object in getting possession of the gems was even stronger than the professional pride that had actuated him to recover them for their owner. He was aware they had a reason yet to be explained why they were in such a desperate hurry to take the stones of the necklace, or at least one of them—the Maharanee—to India. Even now they might be about a vessel that would put to sea in a few hours, leaving no trace of their departure. Or, it might be they were beyond the city limits on their way to another part of exit. He must stop them at all hazards. He leaped to the telephone, called Police Headquarters, got Manning on the wire, and asked the Chief to give personal attention to the request he was about to make.

"Notify all precincts," said Britz, "to stop every man of Oriental appearance attempting to leave the city by boat or train. Have all the ferries watched, and send a double detail to the Grand Central Station. Telephone the Associated Press for a list of the vessels about to sail today; have the water front watched for tramp steamers, and don't forget the small craft, both sail and steam."

"Have you found the jewels?" asked Manning, at the other end of the wire.

"No!" roared Britz, "but I will have them in a few hours, if you'll make the bunch hustle to help me. Will you attend to all this yourself, Chief?"

Britz found Doctor Pritch waiting for him on the sidewalk, as he had arranged before entering the apartment of Mrs. Delaroché in the guise of a burglar, and in a single word told the physician how he had been balked in the chief object of his nocturnal visit.

"Quick! the word now, doc!" said Britz.

"Where are you going?" asked Pritch.

"To head off the Hindoo," cried Britz. "Let's get a cab." But the last taxicab on the Renaissance stand had been chartered an hour before by a swarthy man who seemed to be in great haste. That much Britz learned from the inspector in charge of the stand. Britz and Pritch rounded the curb stood a private coupe. The coachman doubtless on a long wait, was nodding sleepily. Britz jerked open a door of the carriage.

"Jump in, quick!" he cried, and Pritch, who long ago had learned to carry out Britz's suggestions without stopping to ask questions, sprang into the cab. Britz slammed the door with a violence that awoke the coachman. Before the driver could utter a word of protest the athletic detective reached the box beside him in a single leap, pushed him off with a shove that landed the amazed Jehu on his hands and knees on the sidewalk, seized the reins, snatched the whip, and put the horse to a gallop. As he sped away, he hastily changed the whip to the hand that held the ribbon, and, whipping from his pocket a card that read, "Detective Lieutenant Britz, Police Headquarters," he flung it at the prostrate coachman with the words: "Call there tomorrow for your rig."

Then, with the horse straining at the traces in indignant surprise, Britz drove at breakneck speed down the avenue, turning sharply at the first convenient corner and heading east toward the mysterious brown-stone dwelling wherein he had held his interesting interview in regard to the ways of the Orient with the Eastern sage.

The galloping horse and the swaying carriage shook the echoes of the silent streets, and at several avenue crossings traffic policemen started to halt the Central Office man. But in each instance the detective shouted: "I'm Britz, of Headquarters!" and that averted interruption as he dashed on toward the Swami's house at top speed. Arriving there, he hastily handed the reins to a patrolman who chanced to be at the end of the boat, and, followed closely by Pritch, he ran up the steps and pushed the button of the electric bell. Inside the house, the burr of the little gong sounded piercingly. Britz and Pritch listened impatiently at the outer door of the vestibule for responsive steps, but none came. Then the detective recalled the thickness of the rugs and carpets in the house, and did not at once conclude no one was within. Until he had rung the bell several times in vain he did not accept the fact that the house either was unoccupied, or was occupied by persons who did not see fit to answer. A word to the bluecoat on the sidewalk, accompanied by a flash of a shield on the detective's waistcoat, had told him the visit was a matter of police business. Then Britz ran down the steps and tried the basement door.

The detective was equally unsuccessful in his demands to obtain a response to his ring of the lower bell. He ran up the steps again and once more pushed the button of the electric call. No answer came. Britz turned the handle of the door. To his astonishment, it turned freely, and at a gentle push the door swung inward. The inner door of the vestibule was ajar. Britz and Pritch entered cautiously. Their feet fell silently on the heavy Oriental rug. They found themselves in complete darkness. The glimmer from the street lamp did not penetrate more than a foot or two beyond the inner door. Britz whaled out his electric torch and turned its miniature flashlight on the passage and on the area leading to the upper part of the house.

"Hello!" he called. "Is anybody in?" Silence as heavy and oppressive as the darkness beyond the radiance of his little pocket lamp answered him again. The two men, the detective slightly in advance, walked quickly along the hall to the door at the rear, where Britz parted the portieres and looked into the big room in which he had interviewed the Eastern scholar. Its appearance was much the same as it had been on his preceding visit, save that as his practiced eye dwelt more persistently upon it, he noted the disappearance of many small articles, particularly a porphyry Buddha that had sat within a little shrine upon the wall. The apartment had the seeming of having been subjected to a surface stripping by persons about to leave it in a hurry. Few of the solemn books that had been scattered about the room remained. Among the Oriental objects still in the room was the marble chess from which the sage was fond of drawing a smoker's consolation.

"Gone, eh?" said Pritch, in an undertone.

Britz nodded.

"Think we had better look upstairs?" asked the doctor.

With another swift nod the detective turned on his heel and led the way from floor to floor until they reached the top of the house. They glanced into every room and explored the larger apartments thoroughly. All were empty. Here and there they found evidences of hasty packing. In various rooms were queer jumbles of the East and West—linen collars with single hairline stripes of delicate tint lay beside Oriental scraps of mantle finery. On one rack hung a Derby hat, on another a turban like that worn by the Swami, and like the kerchief Britz had found on the fire escape of the Hotel Renaissance. One of the most interesting finds was a scimitar with a jeweled hilt and a blade of wonderful keenness. Britz drew it from its scabbard and was about to feel the edge when Pritch stopped him with a swift gesture.

"Don't touch it, Lieutenant," said the doctor. "One never knows what criminal tricks these beggars play with their weapons."

As the detective looked at him inquiringly, he added:

"A sword or dagger is as likely to be poisoned as not. In fact, they prefer poisons to straight fighting."

Convinced there was no one in the upper part of the house, the two men descended to the main floor and re-entered the reception room at the rear.

"This was their den," said Britz explanatorily, as he began a closer search of the room. "We may find a trace of them in some of their papers. It's worth a few minutes to make a hunt. Get busy, doc!" And the detective rummaged through drawer after drawer, Pritch following his example. They found many unusual articles, but nothing that gave an inkling of the direction of the Hindoo's flight—for it was certain the Oriental had departed hastily, having gained their object in this session of the Missioner necklace. Britz had no smallest doubt the Easterner had anticipated him in the burglary of Mrs. Delaroché's apartments. He did not believe any of the low-caste Hindoos would have been skilful enough to get into the woman's rooms, so near the top of the building. In his opinion, the genus had been filched from Millicent's pillow by either the Swami or the Prices. It was typical of the clever cunning of the high-caste Oriental to take only the jewels and leave the casket under the pillow, so that Mrs. Delaroché should not miss the stones until the last moment possible. They must have picked the lock.

Britz had ended his exploration of the last table drawer, and was turning to a lacquered desk, when Pritch, with a cry of unmistakable alarm, gripped his wrist and dragged him toward the divan, and with a bound stood upon its yielding surface.

"Jump up, quick!" said the doctor, plucking at the detective's arm as he spoke.

Britz had experienced too many emergencies in his career to waste time in questions. When anyone of whose friendliness he felt sure told him to jump, run, or duck, obedience to the command was his first instinct—time enough for explanation afterward. He leaped to the springy sofa beside the physician, and turned to find the doctor's arm stretched tautly, ending in a quivering forefinger that pointed at something moving across the space between the divan and door. Even as the two looked at it, the motion of the creature ceased, and two heady eyes were turned in their direction. Pritch dragged the detective to the other end of the sofa and began climbing to the top of a tall chiffonier that stood against the wall. Britz needed no further word from his friend. The physician's haste was sufficient indication that they were in grave peril, and though the tall chest of drawers made asphyctic climbing, he was beside the doctor with marvelous quickness. When both were safely on the top of the chiffonier, Pritch lowered a foot and with a powerful shove sent the divan a yard or more away. Then he drew his feet to the top of their perch, and bade Britz do the same. That done, Pritch mopped his brow with a handkerchief, which, crisp one instant, was limp the next.

Telephone Conversations as Evidence.

In a recent case it was admitted that a telephone conversation had taken place between a representative of the plaintiff and the defendant, but it was claimed on the part of the defendant-appellant that each party to the conversation could testify only to what he said and could not testify to what he heard through the telephone, presumably upon the ground that he might have misunderstood what the other party said. In declaring this objection untenable the appellate division in the second department pertinently said that such a rule would admit fragments of conversation, perhaps meaningless and probably untrustworthy. "The conversation, that is, what one said and the other replied, is the only intelligible and helpful evidence,"—Hench and Bar.

Through swallowing her false teeth, apparently while she was asleep, Mrs. Allen Dear, 51 years old, of Sewell road, Hatterston, died. The cause of her death was discovered at a post-mortem examination.—London Chronicle.

Uses of the Aloe.

In Africa the leaves of certain species of aloe provide material for bow-strings, hammocks, fishing lines and ropes. With the Mohammedans the aloe means much. For instance, those who have returned from a pilgrimage to Mecca hang it over their doors, as a sign that they have made the great journey.

NEW HEAD OF WORLD ALLIANCE.
REV. DR. STEWART MCARTHUR.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Baptist World Alliance, an organization embracing members in every corner of the world, is to have at its head for the succeeding year, a man whose life has been dedicated to the betterment of religious conditions all over the world. Rev. Dr. Stewart McArthur of New York, was unanimously elected at the convention just closed here. He is a man of vast experience with a gift of organization and eloquence and a personal magnetism which will make his work for the year unusually successful.

It is rumored that he may resign the pastorate of Calvary Church in New York in order to make a personal investigation of religious conditions in Russia.

New Auto Motive Power.

Automobilists in England—they call them motorists over there—are much interested in the success of an invention known as "solid petrol," or gasoline in little bricks. Its exact composition is, of course, a secret. It contains 80 per cent. of ordinary gasoline, a percentage of sawy matter, and one per cent. of a foreign substance which gives it solidity. A small block of it is said to be equal to a gallon of liquid motive power, and its inventors say that enough to propel a car 1,200 miles can be carried in a little box on the running board of the machine.

Can't All Do It.

One of the leading singers of grand opera makes her own hats.

HONEST MEDICINES VERSUS FAKES.

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to Prepared Medicines, does not refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Kidney Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medicinal qualities are recognized by the medical profession itself as the best known remedial agents for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Kidney and Urinary Pills have been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for grown persons, and it retains today its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley's Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious.—Hudger Drug Co.

UTTER'S CORNERS.
Utter's Corners, July 4.—Lucy S. Pardee was born in the town of Scott, Courtland county, New York, January 20, 1821, and died at her home in Cresco, Iowa, June 20, 1911, aged 87 years, five months, and ten days. Funeral services were held at this home in Cresco, July 1st, and the remains were brought to Whitewater for burial at her home. She was laid to rest two years ago at the age of 84 years, nine months and four days.

On March 28, 1844, she was united in marriage to Alvin Rice Parson of Homer, N. Y. One week later they started west to seek a home, locating in Woodford county, Ill., near Peoria, where they remained four years. In 1848 they came to Wisconsin, locating on a farm three miles south of Whitewater, where they remained for twenty years, and where ten children were born to them, six of whom survive—three sons and three daughters. In the spring of 1863 they sold their farm and moved to Iowa, locating on a farm five miles from Cresco. Twenty-five years ago they sold their farm to their youngest son, T. O. Little Bed-Time Tales

By EDITH HAVENS

The Telegraph

Did any of you little people ever happen to see a telegraph instrument ticking off its messages in full blast? Well, if you haven't this story of Walter and Ellen will be of great interest to you. You see, Walter and Ellen were brother and sister and their father was the telegraph operator in one of the large cities.

Sitting there in his office he could talk to people all over the great country by simply pressing his finger upon a small telegraph tapper. They call this tapper a key in the telegraph office. But here is the story. Many nights after Mr. Brown had arrived home from his work he would tell most interesting stories of how he had been talking with people here, there and everywhere. It was thus that Walter and Ellen became very interested and for a long time they had begged their father to take them into the office in order that they might see this wonderful little instrument. At last he promised to take them in and never again did the children forget that day. They rode to the city in the train and when they arrived at the office they were very much excited. My, what a clatter and din there was all about them. It seemed as if a million crickets with very sharp clicky voices were talking all at once. The children covered their ears and how Mr. Brown laughed. Then they went into Mr. Brown's private office and there upon one of the desks they saw two very small instruments with something like a big window looking out from each one. "Is that the telegraph?" asked Walter, going close to the desk and bending over the strange thing. "Yes," answered Mr. Brown. "But do not touch it." Then Mr. Brown took off his coat and sat down in front of the desk. He pulled a switch towards him and then began to press the tapper with his finger. The children watched, hardly daring to breathe. Now Mr. Brown had a friend in a city hundreds of miles away and only the day before he had telegraphed him to bring his little boy and girl down to the telegraph office at the same time he had planned to take Walter and Ellen to his own office. And now Mr. Brown was calling up that far away office. Presently he stopped tapping and looking over to the children he said, "We will get an answer very quickly." Then he told them about the little boy and girl on the other end. In a minute back came the answer, and can you imagine the fun that followed when both the children's papers sent messages back and forth for the method of these ticks for fifteen minutes or more. No, they will never forget it as long as they live.

The desks they saw two very small instruments with something like a big window looking out from each one.

Porter, July 5.—Mrs. Judd McCarthy is entertaining her sister and two children from Milwaukee.

Mrs. Margaret Parlo is visiting at the home of her son, B. L. Parlo.

Forgot the Book. A lady who ordered some carnal coats to be sent up on "appro," on Saturday returned them on the Monday following with the message: "None were suitable." The next morning she received a courteous communication from the head of the department returning her prayer-book, which had been found in the pocket of one of the coats.

Looked Like a Record. Mrs. Crimmonbeck—"What are you going to do with that porous plaster, John?" Mrs. Crimmonbeck—"I'm going to see what time it will play on the phonograph."

Eating. If people eat what they like without troubling themselves with the question of whether it is good for them they will probably live just as long and be a good deal happier.

Oysters and Poverty.

By some people a taste for oysters is regarded as a sign of comparative affluence. Fifty years ago, however, oysters were sold in England at 12 cents a dozen, and it was Sam Weller who discovered that "poverty and oysters always go together." "The poorer a place is, the greater call there seems to be for oysters," said Sam. "Look here, sir; blessed if I don't think that even a man's very poor he rushes out of his lodgings and eats oysters in regular desperation."

Why Snakes Are Blind. Rattlesnakes as well as other species of the snake family are blind three, sometimes four, times a year. As a rule they shed their skins in the spring, midsummer and fall, during which time there is a short period of a few days in which they are more or less blind, causing them to be more dangerous. When they are shedding their skins they also shed the eye covering, thus causing blindness.—St. Nicholas.

Self-Deceiving Male. Many a man passes for wise because he asks questions which cannot be answered even by himself.—Life.

HAY FEVER AND SUMMER COLDS Must be relieved quickly and Foley's Honey and Tar Compound will do it. E. M. Stewart, 1234 Wisconsin St., Chicago, writes: "I have been greatly troubled during the hot summer months with Hay Fever and find that by using Foley's Honey and Tar Compound I get great relief." Many others who suffer similarly will be glad to benefit by Mr. Stewart's experience. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is effective for coughs and colds in either children or grown persons.
